SUFFRAGISTS TO WAR

Stormy Session Promised at Annual Convention.

TWO FACTIONS ON PLATFORM

Led by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Milion Opposition to "Votes for Wom- and others. en" Movement-Other Side Wants a Campaign of Education.

There promises to be a stormy debate between the faction of the National Woman Suffrage Association that wants a radical campaign for votes and the faction that is for a passive one, at the annual convention which opens at the Arlington Hotel next Thursday.

Led by Mrs. O. H. F. Belmont, of New York, the militant suffragists will attempt to have the platform of the convention declare open war against those who oppose woman suffrage. Already Rev. William T. Russell Says Adcalls have been sent out to radicals in the ranks of the national "votes for women" organization to rally to the banner of the progressives and demand the issue be forced upon the country.

Will Educate People. On the other side will be arrayed a dozen women known throughout the country as steadfast suffragists, who nevertheless believe a campaign of education, slow but sure, is the best way to open the polling booths to their sex.

Who will win and how the delegates will line up on the question is problematical, but some dissension is anticipated from the first call to order. Both sides will pring every influence to bear to keep the convention harmonious, and both sides agree that whichever wins the decision it will be abided by without discontent.

New issues and an entirely new reorganization of the various suffrage bodies affiliated with the parent organization have loomed up since the convention a

Catching the spirit of their warlike sisters across the Atlantic, an energetic faction has sprung up that wants to demand votes for women rather than go through the tortuous methods of educating the people and grabbing territory bit by bit.

Many Daughters Members,

The suffrage convention overlaps the National Daughters of the American Revolution conference, beginning next Monday. Many Daughters are affiliated with the suffrage movement, including number of Washington women.

Locally opinion is widely divided as to what the suffrage convention will do to bring every difference of method by the various affiliated bodies into one big movement. That the issue of the convention will be this-to adopt a harmonious method of forwarding the movement-is conceded, but whether it will be militant or conservative is said to be impossible psychology at Catholic University, adaddressed members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society at their quarterly meeting in Carroll Institute Hall last evening. Father Shields spoke on the necessity of constructive work by the society, and congratulated the members on the excellent reports submitted to the meeting. Rev. William T. Russell, D. D., spiritua! director of the society, said the society is now hampered in its work by lack of funds. An appeal will be made soon for assistance to continue the society's administrations to the poor of the city.

Reports of twenty subordinate conferences of the relief work were submitted. It is estimated that $5,000 was expended for clothing, fuel, provisions, and other necessities. The report of the employment committee showed that 90 per cent of those assisted in obtaining positions were now established so that further aid was unnecessary

A large delegation from the Christ Child Society attended the meeting. Miss Merrick, president, extended the co-operation of members of the society in the relief work, and reported that any delicate child would be given a two weeks' vacation in the country, after an investigation and report on the case. The committee on special works submitted interesting reports of personal visits to the jails, workhouses, and reform schools of the District, in addition to the customary visits to the local hospitals, The officers of the society are: President, Judge William H. De Lacy; vice president, Thomas K. Gallagher; secretary, James D. Mankin; treasurer, William P. Nurmoyle; spiritual director, Rev. William T. Russell, D. D.
